

business and the way you work. We were not permitted to discuss our plans for staff, recruiting staff to essential roles or having to make workers redundant.

The National Careers Service offers confidential advice and support to help you meet your needs, and you will receive an individual service level agreement.

Our specialist staff will help you to understand your options, including the possibility of working from home. We will also help you to understand your rights and the support available to you. We will also help you to understand your options, including the possibility of working from home. We will also help you to understand your rights and the support available to you.

If you are interested in working with the National Careers Service in London, we would like to hear from you. Please contact us on 0800 100 900 or visit our website at www.nationalcareers.service.gov.uk.

NSL 2020/01/20 10:00:00

Or call 0800 100 900

Adapt to new ways of working and communicating utilising various digital platforms.

immediate re-employment opportunities application techniques

workforce planning and recruitment strategies

workforce planning and recruitment strategies

Understand the needs of your business

Find out what other opportunities are available including wellbeing and mental health, financial management