

UCL WAYS OF WORKING FOR PROFESSIONAL SERVICES STEPS TO DEVELOPMENT

The UCL Ways of Working for professional services supports colleagues to be successful and happy at UCL through sharing expectations around how we work.

The framework enables individuals, teams and leaders to set clear expectations, support development, have quality conversations and be their best in the workplace. The Descriptor table below is broken down into grade-relevant supporting indicators and steps to development in the rest of the document.

PERSONAL EXCELLENCE
Commitment	We are persistent in our shared commitment to our goals, our overall mission, and to taking care of ourselves, our students and each other.
Outstanding Service	We take pride in delivering a positive and proactive service to our colleagues and communities, striving for high quality outcomes and smater ways of working.
Integrity	We insist of honesty, inclusion and respect for each other in line with UCL's core values, recognising excellence in different forms. We take full accountability for our actions and leading by positive example.

WORKING TOGETHER
Communication	We communicate with intention and clarity, building strong relationships  – listening and responding with fairness and compassion
Collaboration	We work creatively in empowered cross-functional teams and partnerships where we build trust and recognise each other's contributions.
Shared Learning	We create learning-focused working environments, where we ask challenging questions, encourage respectful inquiry, seek continuous improvement and development, and value constructive feedback.

ACHIEVING OUR MISSION
Vision	We know why our work is important, and we respond to the 'bigger picture', drawing out opportunities through being ambitious, united and forward -thinking.
Innovative Practice	We review our practices and innovate where necessary to use our resources effectively, to achieve our long-term aims and support our objectives.
Ownership	We understand our responsibilities for delivering timely and effective outcomes, which we achieve through decisive, clear strategies, and well-communicated, consultative plans.

THE UCL WAYS OF WORKING STEPS TO DEVELOPMENT GRADE 6

The Ways of Working Steps to Development gives examples of typical behaviours that support or hinder the central Ways of Working, and provides suggestions for development, through on the job learning, peer learning and formal training. These indicators can be used for activities such as appraisals and personal/ professional development. Although the indicators are listed as relevant to grades, the design assumes that staff will also model behaviours indicated below their current grade.

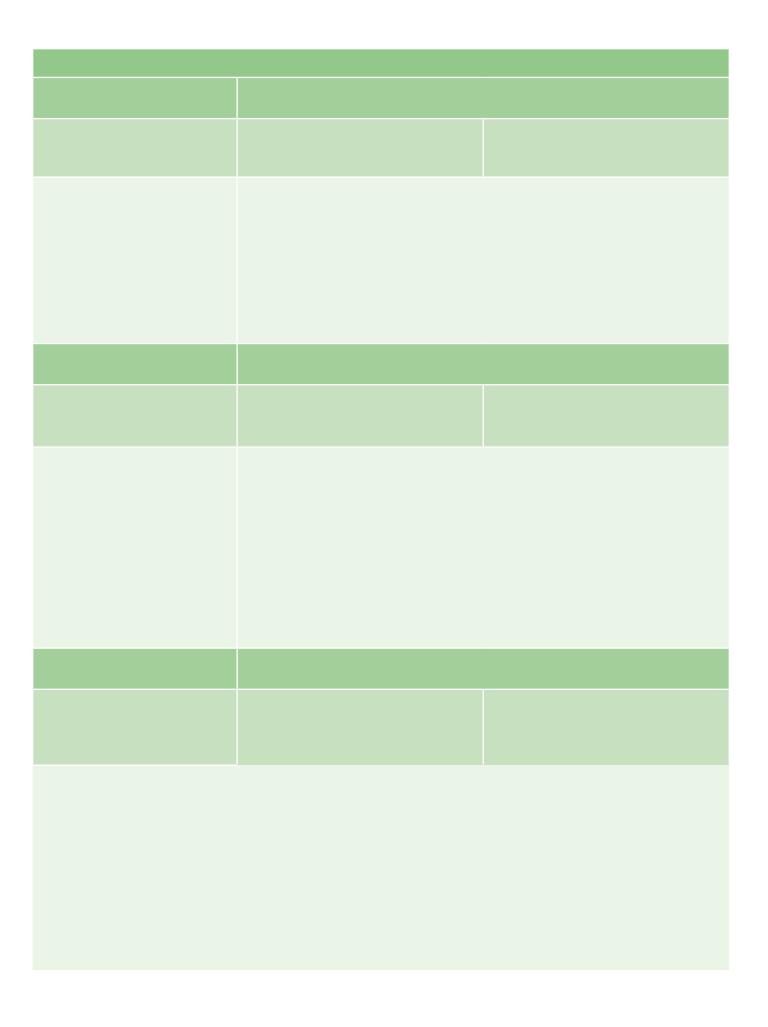

PERSONAL EXCELLE	NCE	GRADE 6
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Being consistent and doing what you say you will do.
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Personal Excellence	Being inconsistent in what you say what you will do, depending on who asks you.	Getting overloaded and not always , }i•@i}*Å; @æcĥ^[`Å•æ^Å^[`Ă;i  Åå[Åà^&æ`•^Á you agree to do too much.
Steps towards development	Focus on being very clear about what you can provide to people with the time you have available. Push back and discuss with your manager in the early stages if you can see a potential problem looming. Be open to re-prioritising based on that discussion. $\ddot{O}^{\circ}(1) = \ddot{A}^{\circ}(1) + \ddot{A}^{\circ}(1) +$
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Having a positive and helpful approach to work.
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Personal Excellence	Treating work as a chore rather than a source of pride.	Sticking to tasks when you're over stretched and you may be risking negative personal or professional consequences if you carry on.
Steps towards development	How do people see you at work? It is often hard to know whether you come across $\display \alpha \display \alpha \display \dinploy \display \display \display \display \displa
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Understanding your responses to stress, and developing personal resilience strategies
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Personal Excellence	Not recognising or acknowledging stress- ¦^ æc^åååå-,&` cå^•Éåå^•]åc^Á-^^åàæ&\	Pushing yourself excessively when you feel stressed, without asking for support

Taking proactive steps where you see an opportunity to fulfl a need.
Waiting to be told what to do without taking any personal initiative.	Consistently taking proactive steps at the expense of set objectives and wandering off course from your main priorities.
Have a conversation with your manager or relevant stakeholders about where and when they would expect you to act on your own initiative, and when they would want you to consult.  Experiment with suggesting an answer rather than stating problems. This will signal your proactivity. Ask for explanations around decision-making rationales so that you can understand the thinking and come up with a proactive ideas for next time.
Understanding personal obligations to, and acting in accordance with UCL's commitments to inclusion and well-being.
Not understanding what is meant by inclusion or well-being.	Understanding what is meant by inclusion  ###################################
UCL is London's Global University. Our colleagues, students and partners come from all over the globe. Building on our collective knowledge and expertise requires us all to treat each other with respect and fairness. This ensures we can all contribute our best ideas and excel at work. To achieve this, each of us needs to develop our awareness of and commitment to (inter)cultural sensitivity and agility.  Upskill yourself on what UCL means by inclusion. Consider key areas where inclusivity issues are directly relevant to your area of work / team – this will impact all areas of employee life from recruitment and progression to how you run meeting agendas. Spend some time learning about UCL's commitment to inclusion and speak to your HR expert if in doubt.  Think about how you and members of your team understand inclusion. Notice patterns of behaviour that don't adhere to UCL's commitments.  1. Raise any concerns and make suggestions where you feel your team can improve their response to issues relating to inclusion or well-being. Use UCL channels such as 'Report + Support' and 'Full Stop' if your concerns are not being addressed. Look at the Equality, Diversity & Inclusion website for staff and students at UCL. Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Responding to colleague, student and stakeholder needs with the intention to provide an excellent service.
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Personal Excellence	Providing late or incomplete responses, ones that do not solve the issue.	Ü^•][}åå}*أ، غُد@أإغْده ^أ، ^¢åàå أغْد^أ[!أ appreciation of the context of the issue.
Steps towards development	Gain an understanding of what excellent service in your area should be. Without this baseline it is hard to measure how you are performing. Talk to your manager about conversations or training you might need to get up to speed. Excellent service is underpinned by a commitment to treating people fairly and with respect.  Consider how your responses are landing with your stakeholders. How might you adjust
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Planning effectively so that work is delivered and others are not delayed.
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Personal Excellence	Getting side tracked with other issues and holding others up by not delivering on time.	Being over-ambitious as to what can be delivered in the time-frame, meaning that things can get very stressful at the last minute.
Steps towards development	Consider how you might use project management techniques to improve your planning abilities. Plan time to do your work in your diary at the beginning of the week. Seek out training or look at LinkedIn Learning.  Communicate with the team and with anyone that may be impacted by your work. Make sure they are fully informed as to any unavoidable changes in deadline at the earliest point.
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Demonstrating interest and fexibility to support work in different areas.
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Personal Excellence	Being reluctant to get diverted into different areas of work.  Offering so much help that your own work suffers.

WORKING TOGETHER GRA
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Building rapport and being comfortable with others across different cultures and backgrounds
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Working Together	Being hard to approach or not treating groups of people equally and with fairness.	Spending too much time socialising, in a way that impacts work outcomes.
Steps towards development	Building rapport is about relating to, or connecting with others. Being able to work across different groups within and beyond UCL is essential for cultivating a positive environment at work. Rapport and trust are closely linked, and when we feel connected with others and there is a shared vision we are more likely to be successful. Even if you do not believe this is true of yourself, it will be true of others in your team.
	Think about how you build rapport with others. What do you do to develop key relationships? What steps could make these relationships stronger and more real, whilst keeping it light? Are you aware of how different individuals and groups may prefer to communicate?
	Make sure your timing is good – chatting to busy people can impact negatively.  Asking for feedback in the moment can be helpful– eg is this a good time for a quick conversation? Planning catch-ups in people's diaries can also be a good approach.  Think about what works best in your work environment.
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Innovating and sharing with new ways to work effciently
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Working Together	Working in isolation and not sharing ideas.	Following own working patterns that do not work for others.
Steps towards development	Doing the job you do puts you in the perfect position for seeing how it can be done better! How often are you frustrated by things that don't work as well as they could, and what do you do to change the approach? What would work better for you and the team? Think about how you could come up with ideas for doing things differently and eliminating complexities.
	How does your team share ideas currently? In meetings? In personal conversations? Through online systems? Find the best ways to run ideas past the team, and if there is not already a way to do this - talk to your manager about creating one!
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Demonstrating interest in personal development
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Working Together	Believing personal development isn't important to progression.	Seeing formal training as the only viable form of development.
Steps towards development	Thinking about personal development isn't something that should be done once a year in an appraisal setting. Think about your ideal next steps, your CPD plan, and your areas for development, discuss with your manager and build a development plan to work from.
	Development at UCL is viewed around the 70:20:10 model where 70% of learning is 'on the job', 20% is through 'interactions with others' and 10% is in 'formal training'. Ensure that you have a development plan that covers all of these three areas and is linked to your future progression plans. Look at the Career Pathways site on the UCL website for $\mathring{a} \mathring{c}^{[1]} \mathring{b} \mathring{c}^{[1]} \mathring{b} \mathring{c}^{[1]} \mathring{b} \mathring{c}^{[1]} \mathring{b} \mathring{c}^{[1]} \mathring{c}^{[1]$

Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Understanding other people's perspectives
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Working Together	Not being open to see other people's points of view.	Being open to understanding to the point that your own perspective is unclear, leading to confusion and indecision.
Steps towards development	People that are strong on emotional intelligence and empathy are quick to understand the perspectives of others. This supports a cohesive and productive work environment <code></code>
Supporting Indicators for Personal Excellence	Proactively seeking feedback on your work.
Examples of behaviours that may hinder Working Together	Thinking feedback is a criticism and taking it personally.	Looking for feedback so often it affects work performance.
Steps towards development	Seeking and receiving feedback is a great way to understand and progress your development. Feedback can be formal or informal, but creating a strategy to understand how you are receiving it and from whom can be useful. Talk to your manager or key colleagues and stakeholders to constructively discuss their views on your strengths and areas for development.  Look for themes in the feedback, and think about whether you can relate to the comments. Build actions into your development plan, and think about how you will
